SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

A pretty fair estimate as to how a war might invade society's realm and upset its calculations is beginning to be furnished in this and other cities by threatened weddings and the indefinite postponement of other events of less importance until some more auspicious day.

The Easter breakfast at the Washington Club, which was to have been one of the attractive affairs of the week, has been abandoned because of the present complications, and it is rumored that several other entertainments arranged for the Easteride will also be deferred.

Mrs. Gallaudet, of Kendall Green, will not be at home today, but will receive as the following Saturdays in April and May.

Mrs. Newcomb, the regent of the District will be at home to the officers of the District chapters this evening at No. 1629 P Street.

The Swiss minister and Madame Pella have invitations out for a dinner April 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grayson Dulin will give a progressive card party on the evening of April 15.

Word comes from Old Point Comfort that the marriage of Miss Elizabeth McCalla and Lieut. W. G. Miller, Jr., will be solemnized there at the Hotel Chamberlain today, the happy event having been hastened on account of the war. Lieut. Miller is a lieutenant of the junior grade, and his last sea service was on board the Monocacy in Chinese waters. Then he was sent to Washington, where he met and fell in love with Miss McCalla. The marriage finally was fixed for next fall, but there came rumors of war, and it was intimated to the lieutenant that he was about due for sea service. Then Miss McCalla agreed to hasten the happy day, and it was arranged that the wedding should take place at once, so that he might go to war a married man.

The father of the bride is now in command of the Sholebrook, with the Key West squadron. The bride's mother was a Miss Sargent, of Boston. There are rumors of another wedding which, if everything goes smoothly, will take place at the hotel on the same night, but that is not yet settled.

Mr. Elbert S. Mahoney, of Randolph-Macon College, is spending the Easter holidays at his home in this city.

Miss Harriette Gaily of New York, a pupil of Leitchfield, will make her debut in this city Saturday, April 6, at noon. The recital will be given at the Washington Club, under the patronage of some of the most prominent society leaders of the national capital, among them being Mrs. Hobart, Mrs. Newlands, Mrs. George Lathrop Bradley and Mrs. Albert C. Barnes, Mrs. Stanley Matthews, Mrs. Leiter, Mrs. James L. Anderson, Mrs. N. S. Lincoln and Mrs. McMillan.

Every seat was occupied at the last meeting of the Shakespeare Club on the 5th inst., in its parlors, 1425 New York Avenue. Mrs. Frances R. Burdett's timely story of "A Captured Patriot," interested all as the members gathered, and the original verse and music supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Howard, proved not less attractive.

The story of the life and character of Louis M. Alfieri, by Mrs. C. A. Metcalf, was well received, and was also the recitation by Mrs. Jean R. Lockwood and Mrs. Hart.

President Kirk read a letter from Mr. Will Carleton on the relative rank of American poets, the Misses Small sung acceptably, and the discussion on "Women Poets of America" was participated in by Miss Williamson, Mrs. Hart, Col. Bradshaw and Miss Ringgold.

Ninety-five young lady students of Randolph-Macon Women's College, of Lynchburg, Va., have arrived in Washington to spend the Easter holidays. They are in charge of Dr. W. W. Smith, president of the college, and the party are staying at the Le Petit Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler E. Pendleton, of Chicago, who have been visiting friends in Washington for the past week, left for New York City, to remain a month before returning to the West. They were accompanied by Miss Louisa Walker, of M Street.

The Jefferson Day Dinner.

There is little doubt that the gathering of loyal representative Democrats in the splendid banquet hall of the National Rifles, on G Street, Wednesday night next, in celebration of the 15th anniversary of the death of Thomas Jefferson, will be an event of vast importance and one long to be remembered, and fortunate indeed will be those who attend. The dinner, the wines, the music and the toasts will all be thoroughly American and Democratic. The toast, "Thomas Jefferson," will be responded to by Hon. William J. Bryan, who will undoubtedly deliver a patriotic and timely address and again place him in the foremost rank of American statesmen. His address at the dinner of last year was a brilliant one, but the exigencies of the times will inspire him to a greater effort this year, if that be possible.

In addition to the toast given will be the following: "There is a debt of service due from every man to his country, proportioned to the bounty which nature and fortune has measured to him." "I am not among those who feel that the people." "Our endeavor should surely be to make our hemisphere that of freedom." "Wretched indeed is the nation in whose affairs foreign powers are permitted to intermeddle." "All utterances of Thomas Jefferson." "The next Congress and its work." "American Democracy." "The State that gives us Jefferson." The responses to these toasts will be made by subscribers to the dinner.

Hon. James K. Jones, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, will be the presiding officer and toastmaster of the evening, being introduced by Hon. Chauncey F. Black, President of the National Association of Democratic Clubs, under whose auspices the celebration is held.

Mr. Lawrence Gardner, secretary of the National Association, who has charge of the arrangements for the dinner, can yet receive a large number of subscriptions, the complement not being yet filled. His office is in the Hutchins Building.

Mr. Gould Refuses to Talk. Omaha, April 8.—George J. Gould has returned from his Western tour of inspection of the Missouri Pacific, from Mountain and Missouri, Kansas and Texas lines. He refused to say anything when told of the report that the three properties were about to be consolidated into one great system, which would be handled jointly with the Union Pacific.

NATIONAL GUARD DUTY.

Adj. Gen. Corbin and Gen. Harries Talk About Soldiers.

The National Guard of the District of Columbia has received no orders, although it is believed that in the event of hostilities the several companies will be assigned to duty in protecting property. Brig. Gen. Harries said yesterday that he had no idea where his command would be assigned. "We are as much in the dark as anyone else," he said.

Everything in business, however, for immediate action along definite lines as soon as these lines are laid out.

It is known that the governors of the several States received instructions a few days ago to cause physical examinations to be made of the men in the State complements, with a view to their being mustered into the Regular Army. Such an examination has been made, as directed, and the results are said to have been highly satisfactory.

Adj. Gen. Corbin will be guided in his future action with regard to the National Guard by the precedents established in the Mexican War and in the War of the Rebellion.

"Should war be declared," he said, "recruiting sergeants specially detailed for that purpose would be sent immediately to the several States to muster in as many men as may be made necessary by whatever proclamation the President may make and in the proportion which may be assigned to each of the States. The militia then would be mustered into definite and designated period, at the expiration of which they will proceed to their homes and resume their wonted occupations, as was the case at the close of the late war."

"Is there not a statute which precludes officers in the National Guard from serving with rank in the Regular Army?" was asked.

"They will be treated as volunteers, as in the late war," was Gen. Corbin's reply. "In fact, all militiamen who may be mustered into the service of the United States will be treated as volunteers. They will enlist upon a footing similar to that upon which other civilians will be accepted for service."

"Have any plans of campaign been projected?"

"Nothing has been settled definitely," replied the brigadier general. "Our plans will depend altogether upon the turn events may take."

ADVISED TO LEAVE CUBA.

Gen. Blanco Declines to Guarantee Miss Barton's Safety.

New York, April 8.—Gen. Blanco has substantially admitted his inability to control the Havana mob in the event of war. In conversation yesterday with Clara Barton, in charge of the Red Cross work in Cuba, he broadly hinted that he could not guarantee her safety.

Stephen B. Spaulding, secretary of the Red Cross Society, said today at the headquarters of the Cuban Relief Committee that his aunt has called to him the purpose of a talk she had had with the captain general. He received her kindly and promised to give her all the protection in his power, but he admitted that in the event of hostilities he might not be able to control the Havana mob, and the sum of his advice to her was to leave Cuba while there was still time.

Mr. Barton called his aunt today to consult with Consul General Lee as to leaving the island and to follow his advice implicitly. Mr. Barton said that aside from the fear of mob violence, there was another reason for her return. In the event of war Miss Barton will be needed here to organize the work of the Red Cross Society.

It is expected that Barton and her nine assistants will leave Havana with Gen. Lee tomorrow. Though relief supplies are still pouring in, Mr. Barton said that no more supplies would be sent to Cuba until there was some certainty that they would reach those for whom they are intended. None is needed just now at Havana, the relief work there being the situation being such that it may not be distributed from that point. The next loads sent will go to other ports, but none will be sent till after Monday.

WARWICK-MARTIN DIFFICULTY.

Congressman Lorimer Intercedes for the Retiree's Negro.

Congressman William Lorimer, of Chicago, was in the Police Court yesterday to champion the cause of Frank Martin, colored, who is charged with making a murderous assault on Mr. Sidney Warwick on March 27. The case was disposed of by Judge Kimball who imposed a fine of $50 or three months in jail before Mr. Lorimer took an active interest in the case. He then asked for the proceedings pending a motion for a new trial.

According to the testimony the difficulty started at the corner of E and Thirtieth Streets and was the outcome of a remark about colored people eating in restaurants with white men. After an exchange of blows at the time it was shown that Mr. Warwick left for his home. He was followed by Martin, who again assaulted him at the corner of F and Twelfth Streets, where he knocked him down and stamped his head with his foot as a result of which Mr. Warwick was compelled to seek medical treatment.

A Correction.

In Saks & Co.'s advertisement in yesterday afternoon's Times, speaking of some extraordinary values in men's suits they would offer today at $12.50, the types made them say "Choice of any suit in the department for $12.50." This should have been "Choice of any suit in the lot for $12.50." The Times, knowing Saks & Co.'s policy of strict adherence to the truth in their announcements, prints this correction of an error of the mechanical department. The advertisement appears in Saks & Co. wrote it in this issue.

Late Local Happenings.

The regular meeting of the Biological Society will be held this evening in the assembly hall of the Cosmos Club.

The police are looking for Charles Rouse, thirty-two years of age, who disappeared from his home, No. 43 Maryland Avenue southwest, at noon Thursday.

Policeman Miller arrested James Wilson, colored, yesterday afternoon for driving his vehicle over the corner of Ninth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue at a fast and reckless speed.

Robert E. Hennault was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with assault by James A. Hoover, 212 M Street, in a dispute about rent and the possession of a boat, and Hoover alleges that Hennault struck him with a hatchet.

Charles E. Williams, thirty-two years of age, was arrested in East Washington yesterday afternoon by Policeman Pister, charged with assaulting his wife, Sarah Williams.

MANSFIELD IN HIS DUAL ROLE.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" Given at the Columbia.

Good Friday can have few terrors for Richard Mansfield 15, the audience that witnessed his presentation of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" last night at the Columbia Theater is a fair criterion. The house was packed to the doors, and standing room was not only at a premium but difficult to obtain even at that. There is no role in Mr. Mansfield's repertoire so well known to the theatre-goers of this country as the double one given last night. Not only does a certain halo of mystery and to its charm, but the fact that its good qualities are rougher and, therefore, more easily appreciated than either those of Beau Brummel or Baron Chovril contributes to its popularity. There is a great deal of hard work to be done—work more exhausting, from a physical point of view, than any other in the theatre.

"Should war be declared," he said, "recruiting sergeants specially detailed for that purpose would be sent immediately to the several States to muster in as many men as may be made necessary by whatever proclamation the President may make and in the proportion which may be assigned to each of the States. The militia then would be mustered into definite and designated period, at the expiration of which they will proceed to their homes and resume their wonted occupations, as was the case at the close of the late war."
